Bullying – From a Students' perspective

Joshua – Personal Experience

As a student, I believe racism is something that should never be accepted in our school or society. I have seen how people can be judged because of their skin colour or background. From my perspective, nobody should feel different or excluded because of who they are. We should all be treated equally and with respect.

Tishe – Knowledge and Awareness

From what I have learned, racism can have a serious impact on a person's mental health, confidence and education. Sometimes, people make racist jokes without realising how hurtful their words can be. I believe it is important for students to educate themselves about different cultures and understand that our differences should bring us together rather than divide us.

Rachel – Taking Action

In my opinion, students have an important role in fighting racism. If we witness someone being treated unfairly, we should support them and report the behaviour to a teacher if necessary. We can also help by including everyone in conversations, group work, and activities. I believe that even small acts of kindness can make someone feel accepted and valued.

Conclusion

As students, we believe that everyone deserves to feel safe, respected and included. By standing together against racism, educating ourselves and treating others with kindness, we can help create a school environment where nobody is judged by their skin colour, culture, or background.
